It is very easy to acquire bad habits, such as eating too many sweets or too much food, or drinking too much fluid of any kind or smoking. The more we do a thing, the more we tend to like doing it, and if we do not continue to do it; we feel unhappy. This is called the force of habit, and the force of habit should be fought against.

Things which may be very good when only done from time to time, tend to become very harmful when done too often and too much. This applies even to such good things as work and rest. Some people form a bad habit of working too much, and other idling too much. The wise man always remembers that this is true about himself, and checks any bad habit. He says to himself, "I am now becoming idle," or "I like too many sweets." or "I smoke too much," and then adds, "I shall get myself out of this bad habit at once."

One of the most widely spread bad habits is the use of tobacco. Tobacco is now smoked or chewed by men, often by women, and even by children, almost all over the world. It was brought into Europe from America by Sir Walter Raleigh four centuries ago, and has thence spread everywhere. I very much doubt whether there is any good in the habit even when tobacco is not used in excess; and it is extremely difficult to get rid of the habit when once it has been formed. (260 words)
